How To Do Your Dissertation in Geography and Related Disciplines

Tony Parsons, University of Sheffield, UK and Peter G Knight, Keele University, UK

Following the success of prior editions, this revised and updated volume continues to provide students with a detailed guide to the planning and procedures needed for preparing projects in geography, environmental science and geology. Written by well-respected authors in the field the book takes new sources and teaching styles into account. Guiding the reader through each stage in the process, it deals with many of the common concerns and issues in dissertation writing from deciding on a topic through to research design and data analysis. With its consideration of different data types and tips on writing from conception to final submission this is an invaluable guide for final-year students.

Geographies of Developing Areas

The Global South in a Changing World

Glyn Williams, University of Sheffield, UK, Paula Meth, University of Sheffield, UK and Katie Willis, Royal Holloway, University of London, UK

This is a textbook that introduces students to the geography of developing areas in a novel and challenging way. Rather than presenting the Global South to students as a set of problems (rapid urbanisation, population growth, poverty, etc) this book focuses on the diversity of life in the South, and looks at the role the South plays in shaping and responding to current global change. Thought-provoking and accessible, this new edition has been fully updated and highlight cross-cutting themes around security, risk and violence; environmental sustainability and climate change; and the impact of ICT on patterns of North-South and South-South exchange.

Research and Fieldwork in Development

Daniel Hammett, Chasca Twyman and Mark Graham

Research and Fieldwork in Development explores both traditional and cutting edge research methods, from interviews and ethnography to spatial data and digital methods. Each chapter provides the reader with an understanding of the theoretical basis of research methods, reflects on their practice and outlines appropriate analysis techniques. The book also examines the role of new media and technologies in conducting research. The final chapters consider the common concerns in development research and looks at the applications of ethics and risk guidelines in fieldwork. The volume is further supported by a selection of real-life case studies as contributed by global experts in the field.

Theories and Practices of Development

Katie Willis, Royal Holloway, University of London, UK

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

Global economic crisis and the implications of global environmental change have led academics and policy-makers to consider how 'development' in all parts of the world should be achieved. Theories and Practices of Development provides a clear and user-friendly introduction to the complex debates around how development has been understood and achieved. The second edition has been fully updated and expanded to reflect global political and economic shifts, as well as new approaches to development. The rise of China and India is given particular attention, as is the global economic crisis and its implications for development theories and practice. There are new sections on faith-based development, disability and sexuality, as well as greater engagement with development theories as they are put into practice in the Global North.

TEXTBOOK

Africa

Diversity and Development

Tony Binns, University of Otago, New Zealand, Alan Dixon, University of Worcester, UK and Etienne Nel, University of Otago, New Zealand

At the start of the twenty-first century, Africa is the world's poorest continent. This book will both introduce and de-mystify Africa's diversity and dynamism, and consider how its peoples and environments have interacted through time and space. The background and diversity of Africa's social, cultural, economic, political and environmental systems will be examined, and the book will identify and elucidate the key development issues which have affected Africa in the past and are likely to be significant in shaping the future of the continent. These will include; the impact of HIV/AIDS, sources of conflict and post-conflict reconstruction, the state and governance, the nature of African economies in a global context, and future development trajectories.

Development Organizations

Rebecca Schaaf, Bath Spa University, UK
 Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

Development Organisations explores the range and role of organizations involved in development policy and practice. This includes community-based organizations and civil society actors, international non-governmental organizations, state and other national-based actors, global forms of governance, international financial institutions and transnational corporations. It considers the historical and contemporary role of each of these actors, explains the complex theoretical debates over their existence and activities, and uses case studies from a variety of contexts to critically assess their effectiveness.

TEXTBOOK

Latin American Development

Julie Cupples, University of Edinburgh, UK

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

This book provides detailed and accessible information and analysis of the key development challenges facing Latin America, the diverse ways in which its peoples are responding to such challenges and ways in which such challenges and responses can be theorized. It emphasizes political, economic, social, cultural and environmental dimensions of development. It explores the region's historical trajectory, the implementation and rejection of the neoliberal model, the role played by diverse social movements, the ways in which Latin American development is shaped by relations of gender, class and race, the environment, media and popular culture. The text contains critical historical and contemporary case studies from all parts of the continent.

TEXTBOOK

The Nation and Its Peoples

Citizens, Denizens, Migrants

Edited by John Park, University of California, Santa Barbara, USA and Shannon Gleeson

With this volume, The University of California Center for New Racial Studies inaugurates a new book series with Routledge. This collection of original essays underscores the persistence of structural discrimination, and the ways in which "race" has formally disappeared in the law and yet remains one of the most powerful, underlying, and unacknowledged aspects of debates about citizenship and national belonging, within immigration politics and policy. This book is ideal as required reading in courses, as well as a vital new resource for researchers throughout the social sciences.

Revolutions in Development Inquiry

Robert Chambers, University of Sussex, UK

Robert Chambers returns with a new book that reviews, together for the first time, some of the revolutionary changes in the methodologies and methods of development inquiry that have occurred in the past forty years, and reflects on their transformative potential for the future.

This book breaks new ground by describing and analysing the evolution of a sequence of approaches. Starting with the dinosaurs of large-scale multi-subject questionnaire surveys, and the biased visits and perceptions of rural development tourism and urban-based professionals, there follows a look at the explosive proliferation of methodologies and methods of recent years. Published with IDS.

TEXTBOOK

Evaluating Communication for Development

A Framework for Social Change

June Lennie, RMIT University, Australia and Jo Tacchi, RMIT University, Australia

This pathbreaking book provides the latest thinking on international development programs which use communication for development (C4D) to implement social change. It critiques many dominant accountability-based approaches to development and evaluation and offers an alternative holistic, participatory, mixed methods approach, using key concepts and principles that are considered more effective and appropriate for achieving long-term sustainable change. This is supported by examples and case studies from over fifteen years of research and projects undertaken by the authors.

TEXTBOOK - NEW IN PAPERBACK

Religion in Today's World

Global Issues, Sociological Perspectives

Melissa M. Wilcox, Whitman College, USA

Series: Contemporary Sociological Perspectives

Sociology of religion as it is conventionally taught in most undergraduate curricula does not reach a broad, lower division student population. Often, a sociology of religion course is taught more as an "ivory tower subject" than as a contemporary, "issues-oriented" subject. With the publication of this new, innovative text-reader, instructors are given a text that accomplishes the broader teaching goal.

Can Emerging Technologies Make a Difference in Development?

Edited by Rachel A. Parker, University of California, Santa Barbara, USA and Richard P. Appelbaum, University of California, Santa Barbara, USA

This volume brings together development stakeholders from several different facets of the development community: social scientists from academia, scientists and engineers working to solve technical problems faced "on the ground" and development practitioners. The aim is to move forward an agenda that successfully links international development and science, technology, and innovation in an ethical, sustainable, and responsible way.

The Connected City

How Networks are Shaping the Modern Metropolis

Zachary P. Neal, Michigan State University, USA

Series: The Metropolis and Modern Life

The Connected City explores how thinking about networks helps make sense of modern cities: what they are, how they work, and where they are headed. Cities and urban life can be examined as networks, and these urban networks can be examined at many different levels. This book focuses on three levels of urban networks: micro, meso, and macro.

Geographies of Privilege

Edited by France Winddance Twine, University of California, Santa Barbara, USA and Bradley Gardener, City University of New York Graduate Center, USA

Geographies of Privilege brings together an interdisciplinary group of scholars with a worldwide focus to reveal the nature of privilege on a global scale. The chapters examine privilege through a relational lens by showing the tension that exists between privileged (elite) and unprivileged (degraded) spaces. By including of persons and groups that are negatively affected by privileged practice, this book makes privilege studies more accessible to students who do not feel privileged.

Geographies of Privilege is the perfect teaching tool for courses on race, class and gender in Geography, Sociology and Anthropology.

China and the Asian Economies

Interactive Dynamics, Synergy and Symbiotic Growth

Dilip K. Das, Solbridge International School of Business, Republic of Korea

This book analyzes the emergence of Asian economies, followed by China, as an economic growth pole of enormous significance. Notwithstanding the diversity in the region, rapid growth was instrumental in integrating the Asian economies initially in a market-led manner and this book explores the interactive dynamics and the process of integration in the region. Written in a clear, comprehensive and critical manner, this book brings together the contemporary academic and policy debates on the issues under examination. As such it is an essential read for students and scholars of economics, international political economy and Asian Studies as well as MBA students.

Bear Traps on Russia's Road to Modernization

Clifford G. Gaddy, Brookings Institution, USA and Barry Ickes, Pennsylvania State University, USA

If sustainable growth is a key goal for the economy of every nation, its desirability is perhaps even more acute in Russia. Even President Medvedev argues that the country's heavy reliance on natural resources makes it primitive and uncompetitive, calling for innovation and diversification. Having analyzed the particular tenets of the economy that restrict sustainable growth, the authors argue that Russia should take advantage of its resources but move non-resource industries into regions that are closer to the market.

China and Globalization

The Social, Economic and Political Transformation of Chinese Society

Doug Guthrie, University of New York, USA

In its quarter-century-long shift from communism to capitalism, China has transformed itself from a desperately poor nation into a country with one of the fastest-growing and largest economies in the world. Doug Guthrie highlights the social, cultural and political factors fostering this revolutionary change and interweaves a broad structural analysis with a consideration of social changes at the micro and macro levels. In this new, revised edition author Guthrie updates his story on modern China and provides the latest authoritative data and examples from current events to chart where this changing society is headed and what the likely consequences for the rest of the world will be.

TEXTBOOK

Understanding Poverty and the Environment

Analytical frameworks and approaches

Fiona Nunan, University of Birmingham, UK

Does poverty lead to environmental degradation? Do degraded environments and natural resources lead to poverty? Or are there other forces at play? Is the relationship between poverty and the environment really as straightforward as the vicious circle portrayal of 'poverty leading to environmental destruction leading to more poverty' would suggest? Does it matter if the relationship is portrayed in this way? Recommended further reading draws on published material from the last thirty years as well as key contemporary publications, steering readers towards essential key texts and authors for each topic. Themes examined include power, access, institutions and scale.

TEXTBOOK

Conservation and Development

Shonil Bhagwat, The Open University, UK and Andrew Newsham, University of Oxford, UK

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

How can we reconcile environmental conservation and economic development? This book asks what is entailed in approaching environmental conservation and economic development simultaneously, and how that changes our understanding of conservation and development. It does this by exploring the outcomes of attempts in the last four decades to reconcile conservation with development both conceptually and in practice, and how that has changed our understandings of the two. Numerous case studies and illustrations ensure the book provides a useful source for undergraduate and postgraduate study, as well as serving as a reference guide for scholars and practitioners.

TEXTBOOK

Resilience, Development and Global Change

Katrina Brown, University of East Anglia, UK

This book critically analyzes the multiple meanings and applications of resilience ideas in contemporary society and suggests where, how and why resilience might cause us to re-think global change and development. It applies resilience ideas specifically to international development and shows how a radical, resilience-based approach to development might transform responses to climate change, to the dilemmas of managing forests and ecosystems, and to rural and urban poverty in the developing world. The book provides fresh perspectives for scholars of international development, environmental studies and geography and add new dimensions for those studying broader fields of ecology and society.

Climate Change and DevelopmentThomas Tanner, Overseas Development Institute, UK and Leo Horn-Phanthanotai, World Resources Institute, USA
Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

Climate Change and Development brings together insights and perspectives from across natural and social science disciplines. Focusing in particular on concerns and perspectives of poor countries and poor people, its hallmark is its concern with structural considerations at the heart of the climate-development nexus. It argues that a transformational – rather than incremental – approach to tackling climate change challenges offers the best route to reducing poverty, stabilising the climate and securing the future well-being of all.

Food and Development

E.M. Young, University of Staffordshire, UK

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

This text analyses diverse food related problems, namely: the continued prevalence of mass under nutrition in the developing world; acute food crises in some places associated with conflict; the emergence of over nutrition in the developing world and the vulnerability of the contemporary global food production system. The most important of these issues are explored with particular reference to their implications for the majority of the world's population who live in what was traditionally categorised as the 'developing world'. The text identifies the major problems and analyses factors at the international, national and local scales to understand their continued prevalence. Each chapter contains international case studies, discussion questions, suggested further reading and suggested websites.

Water Resources and Development

Clive Agnew, University of Manchester and Philip Woodhouse, University of Manchester, UK
 Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

Water Resources and Development explores water management strategies through scientific, social and political perspectives, and uses case studies to exemplify four key development challenges: economic growth, poverty reduction, competition and conflict over water, and adaptation to climate change. It analyses how water resources shape opportunities and constraints for development.

Selected Contents: 1. Water management best practice in the twenty-first century. PART II: 2. Economic growth and increasing water demand; 3. Water resources in colonial and post-independence agricultural development; 4. Water and development under conditions of climate change; 5. Catchments and conflicts. PART II: 6. Enhancement of water supply: water management as science and engineering; 8. Regulation and management of water demand: social and economic governance; 8. Conclusions

Sustainable Energy Solutions for Climate Change

Mark Diesendorf, University of New South Wales, Australia

This book is a call to action on climate change, filled with clear and detailed information on the strategies we need to adopt to ensure a sustainable future for the planet. We have the technology needed to transform our fossil-fuel based energy systems into ecologically sustainable ones, and this book argues that all we now need is the political will to do so. It uniquely brings together both the science and policy issues to provide a truly interdisciplinary approach.

TEXTBOOK

Understanding Human Ecology

A systems approach to sustainability

Robert Dyball, Australian National University, Australia and Barry Newell, Australian National University, Australia

From climate change to world poverty, we are currently facing a vast array of complex challenges which are part of an inter-related web of social and natural systems. Human ecology provides an approach to these problems, a way to understand them holistically and to manage them more effectively. This book is the first to offer a coherent conceptual framework for Human Ecology - a clear method for interpreting the many systems we are part of and the problems we face. Blending natural, social and cognitive sciences with dynamical systems theory, the book offers important systems approaches for anyone looking to manage these complex problems and the transition to sustainability.

Water Security

Principles, Perspectives and Practices

Edited by Bruce Lankford, University of East Anglia, UK, Karen Bakker, University of British Columbia, Canada, Mark Zeitoun, University of East Anglia, UK and Declan Conway, London School of Economics, UK
 Series: Earthscan Water Text

The purpose of this book is to present an overview of the latest research, policy, practitioner, academic and international thinking on water security – an issue that, like water governance a few years ago, has developed much policy awareness and momentum with a wide range of stakeholders. As a concept it is open to multiple interpretations and the authors here set out the various approaches to the topic from different perspectives.

Delivered by international authorities on their subjects, it should serve as an introductory textbook as well as being of value to professionals, NGOs and policy-makers.

Fundamentals of Sustainable DevelopmentNiko Roorda, Maastricht University, the Netherlands, Peter Blaze Corcoran, Florida Gulf University, USA, Joseph Weakland, Florida Gulf Coast University, USA and Nico Zaverdinos

Sustainable Development is an issue for each and every professional. Whether unskilled, or skilled labour, sustainability aspects are going to be – or already are – an essential part of the job. It is so essential that every student, of whatever discipline, learns to think and act in a sustainable way: this book provides the groundwork for that student learning. The Fundamentals of Sustainable Development offers a broad introduction to sustainable development, with a careful balance between the many issues of sustainability and Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR).

This book is a highly complete educational method. The website of the book contains hundreds of exercises and offers learning goals and summaries for each chapter, movie clips, and extra texts for those who want to learn more, as well as a dedicated lecturer section. The book is a complete and interactive tool that provides a sound understanding, for readers, of this very pertinent topic.

The Principles of Sustainability

Simon Dresner, Policy Studies Institute, UK

At a time of increasingly rapid environmental deterioration and climate change, sustainability is one of the most important issues facing the world. Can we create a sustainable society? What would that mean? How should we set about doing it? How can we bring about such a profound change in the way things are organized? This text tackles these questions directly. It covers: historical development of the concept of sustainability; contemporary debates about how to achieve it; and obstacles and the prospects for overcoming them. This new fully revised edition covers the latest on the climate change front, particularly the advances in scientific understanding and political awareness of climate change. Other updates include more recent economic analyses, particularly the Stern Report, and the global shift away from faith in markets over the past five years.

Sustainability

If It's Everything, Is It Nothing?

Heather M. Farley, Northern Arizona University, USA. and

Zachary A. Smith, Northern Arizona University, USA

Series: Critical Issues in Global Politics

The concept of sustainability has become highly important in the business community, academia, and government. Both in the U.S. and internationally, sustainability is used as a guiding principle in policy decision-making, development planning, natural resource management, advocacy coalitions, and within various professional and academic fields. Despite sustainability's prevalence among so many actors and organizations, the concept itself remains highly contested. This book defines and delineates exactly what sustainability does and does not mean.

2nd Edition · TEXTBOOK · NEW EDITION

Cities and Development

Sean Fox and Tom Goodfellow

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

In the five years since the first edition of Cities and Development was published, awareness of the challenges associated with urban growth in the developing world has grown significantly. More than a billion of the world's people live in slums, a shocking statistic that is set to more than double within the next 20 years unless serious interventions are made. This has consequently become a key focus for international aid appeals and research. This revised edition provides an updated critical review of the dynamic relationship between urbanism and development. Building on the success of the first edition, the authors have brought the chapters and the selection of literature up to date.

TEXTBOOK

Cities, Disaster Risk and Adaptation

Christine Wamsler, Lund University, Sweden

Series: Routledge Critical Introductions to Urbanism and the City

This book addresses the urgent need for re-evaluating current city planning to provide better solutions. With disasters and changing climatic conditions being a product of past developments, responding and adapting effectively to risk is inherently complex. This book explores the complex interrelation between disasters, climate change, and cities, provides an understanding on how to integrate sustainable risk reduction and adaptation into city planning – both in theory and in practice, and analyzes the role that people's coping strategies, urban institutions, and governance can play in addressing increasing disaster risk.

Cities of the Global South Reader

Edited by Faranak MirafTAB, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, USA and Neema Kudva, Cornell University, USA

Series: Routledge Urban Reader Series

The Cities of the Global South Reader adopts a fresh and critical approach to the field of urbanization in the developing world, which has seen significant shifts in its thematic and geographic focus since it first began to be defined in the mid-twentieth century. This Reader is thematically structured and pulls together a diverse set of readings from scholars across the world to provide both early conversations as well as new and emerging debates to reflect the diverse trajectories of urbanization processes in the context of the restructured global alignments in the last three decades.

TEXTBOOK

The Chinese City

Weiping Wu, Tufts University, USA and Piper Gaubatz, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, USA

This book offers a comprehensive survey of the evolving urban landscape in China, covering such topics as history and patterns of urbanization, spatial and regional context, models of urban form, social-spatial transformation, economic restructuring, urbanism and cultural dynamics, housing and land development, environmental issues, and challenges of urban governance. It also shows how the character and complexity of the Chinese city both conform to and defy conventional urban theories and the experiences of cities elsewhere around the world. Illustrated case studies in each chapter ground the discussion and introduce readers to the diversity of cities and urban life in China. Most chapters also are rooted in context and can be used as stand-alone course materials, with suggested references for further reading.

Architecture for Rapid Change and Scarce Resources*Sumita Sinha, London Metropolitan University, UK

This book explores what it means for development professionals to practise architecture on a global scale and provides a blueprint for developing architectural practices based on reciprocal working methods. The content is based on real situations – through extended field research and contacts with architecture schools and architects, as well as participating NGOs. It demonstrates that the ability to produce appropriate and sustainable design is increasingly relevant, whether in the field of disaster relief, longer-term development or wider urban contexts, both in rich countries and poor countries.

Reconsidering the Bicycle

An Anthropological Perspective on a New (Old) Thing

Luis A. Vivanco

Series: Routledge Series for Creative Teaching and Learning in Anthropology

This book explores how and why people are reconsidering the bicycle, no longer thinking of it simply as a toy or exercise machine, but as a potential solution to a number of contemporary problems. It focuses in particular on what reconsidering the bicycle might mean for everyday practices and politics of urban mobility, a concept that refers to the intertwined physical, technological, social, and experiential dimensions of human movement.

This book is for Introductory Anthropology, Cultural Anthropology, Cultural Sociology, Environmental Anthropology, and all undergraduate courses on the environment and on sustainability throughout the social sciences.

Participatory Action Research

Theory and Methods for Engaged Inquiry

Jacques M. Chevalier, Carleton University, Ottawa, Canada and Daniel J. Buckles, Carleton University, Ottawa, Canada

This book addresses a key issue in higher learning, university education and scientific research: the widespread difficulty researchers, experts and students from all disciplines face when trying to contribute to change in complex social settings characterized by uncertainty and the unknown. In this book, the authors propose innovative strategies for engaged inquiry building on insights from many disciplines and lessons from the history of Participatory Action Research (PAR), including French psychosociology. The book contributes many new tools and conceptual foundations to this longstanding tradition, grounded in real-life examples of collective fact-finding, analysis and decision-making from around the world.

Conflict and Development

Roger MacGinty, University of York, UK and Andrew Williams, University of St. Andrews, UK

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

In the five years since the first edition of Conflict and Development was published the awareness of the relationship between conflicts and development has grown exponentially. Developmental factors can act as a trigger for violence, as well as for ending violence and for triggering post-conflict reconstruction. The book explores the complexity of the links between violent conflict (usually civil wars) and development, under-development and uneven development. The second edition incorporates significant changes in the field including the G7+ initiative, the New Deal on Fragile States, World Trade talks, major policy documents from the UNDP and World Bank and updates on the Afghanistan and Iraq wars.

Disaster, Conflict and Society in Crises

Everyday Politics of Crisis Response

Edited by Dorothea Hilhorst, Wageningen University, the Netherlands

Series: Routledge Humanitarian Studies

Humanitarian crises, whether they result from conflict, natural disaster or political collapse, are usually perceived as complete breaks from normality, spurring special emergency policies and interventions. This book questions this assumption, arguing that there are both continuities and discontinuities between crisis and normality. Using a wealth of international case studies from a team of leading experts, the book examines what this means for the social and political dynamics of institutional response, international policy and aid interventions in crises.

Theories and Methodologies

Edited by Helen Hintjens, Institute of Social Studies, The Netherlands and Dubravka Zarkov, Institute of Social Studies, The Netherlands

This book addresses methodological challenges in contemporary approaches to conflict, violence and peace and development. Whilst classical approaches linked development with peace, security has become central to understandings of both war and peacetime. This book uniquely reflects on how to deal with the convergence of war and peace in the context of global development. Theoretical, methodological and ethical issues emerge from the critical reviews of academic discourses and case-study based chapters from across the world, including Sri Lanka, Ghana, Colombia and Rwanda.

Conflict, Security and Development

An Introduction

Danielle Beswick, University of Birmingham, UK and Paul Jackson, University of Birmingham, UK

This new textbook addresses the impact of conflict and security on development initiatives, and has three key aims:

to draw on the best of recent academic theory, field research and policy to provide an overview of the connections between security and development to explore the implications of these connections for the theory and practice of development to investigate the challenges that arise for post-conflict reconstruction when we recognise that security and development are mutually contingent.

Each chapter will be informed by student pedagogy and the book will be essential reading for all students of development studies, war and conflict studies, and human security.

Population and Development

W. T. S. Gould, University of Liverpool, UK

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

The new edition of Population and Development offers an up-to-date perspective on one of the critical issues at the heart of the problems of development for all countries, and especially those which seek to implement major economic and social change: the reflexive relationships between a country's population and its development. How does population size, distribution, age structure and skill base affect development patterns and prospects? How has global development been affected by regional population? Written by a leading international scholar in population, the book successfully integrates cutting-edge academic research with the focus and efforts of international development agencies.

Series: Themes in World History

This fully revised and updated second edition of Migration in World History traces the connections among regions brought about by the movement of people, diseases, crops, technology and ideas. Drawing on examples from a wide range of geographical regions and thematic areas, noted world historian Patrick Manning guides the reader through the earliest human migrations; the rise and spread of major language groups, trade patterns, the effect of migration on empire and industry between 1700 and 1900, the resurgence of migration in the later twentieth century and the various leading theories and debates surrounding the subject of migration.

Tourism and Sustainability

Development, Globalisation and New Tourism in the Third World

Martin Mowforth, University of Plymouth, UK and Ian Munt, Independent Urban Development Consultant

'If unequal opportunities are large within many countries they are truly staggering on a global scale', concludes the World Bank's 2006 World Development Report. It is a global unevenness within which the barriers to immigration of Third World migrants to wealthy First World nations go ever higher, whilst the barriers to travel in the reverse direction are all but extinct. How can tourism help narrow this glaring inequality between rich and poor? Tourism and Sustainability critically explores and challenges what have emerged as the most significant universal geopolitical norms. The fourth edition has been extensively updated and includes a new chapter on climate change and sustainable tourism.

Children, Youth and Development

Nicola Ansell, Brunel University London, UK

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

Children, Youth and Development explores the varied ways in which global processes in the form of development policies, economic and cultural globalization and international agreements combine with local practices to shape the lives of young people living in the poorer regions of the world. The book has been updated to take account of significant changes in the contexts in which poor children grow up, notably the financial crisis and changing development policy environment, as well as recent theoretical developments. It is aimed at students on higher level undergraduate and postgraduate courses, new researchers in the field, and organizations working with children in Third World countries.

TEXTBOOK

Religions and Development

Emma Tomalin, University of Leeds, UK

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

The text will present, explain and critically evaluate different sorts of literature from a range of disciplines that are relevant to thinking about the relationships between religions and development. It provides insight into a comprehensive range of approaches to guide readers through current debates about the role that religions play in development – from positive contributions to more complicated and contested notions of impact, for instance, in terms of religiously inspired violence or gender inequality.

The Modern Anthropology of India

Ethnography, Themes and Theory

Edited by Peter Berger, University of Groningen, the Netherlands and Frank Heidemann

The Modern Anthropology of India is an accessible textbook providing a critical overview of the ethnographic work done in India since 1947. It assesses the history of research in each region and serves as a practical and comprehensive guide to the main themes dealt with by ethnographers. It highlights key analytical concepts and paradigms that came to be of relevance in particular regions in the recent history of research in India, and which possibly gained a pan-Indian or even trans-Indian significance.

The Koreas

Charles K. Armstrong, Columbia University, USA

Presenting a succinct, historically informed introduction to North and South Korea, the second edition of The Koreas considers the radically different ways these countries have dealt with the growing challenges of globalization. Since the first edition's publication, the economic, political, and social differences have only intensified, making evident the relevancy and importance of Armstrong's work, in understanding the Koreas now and in the future. Ultimately, The Koreas is a crisp, engaging primer of Korea and the Korean people in the contemporary world. This book is ideal for many courses in a variety of disciplines, including politics, history, international business, and Asian studies.

Global Health

An Introduction to Current and Future Trends

Kevin McCracken, Macquarie University, Australia and David R. Phillips, Lingnan University, Hong Kong

While the overall picture of global health shows improvement, certain regressions and persistent health inequalities are part of the evolving patterns. Concise and comprehensive, this text examines global health challenges over the past century. Making extensive use of case studies and international examples, it discusses the determinants and measurements of population health and disease, health systems, finance issues, and health planning. It also examines problems caused by subnational inequalities and global environmental change as well as geopolitics and human security. The book contains thought-provoking discussion questions in each chapter to facilitate debate.

TEXTBOOK

An Introduction to Global Health Ethics

Edited by Andrew D. Pinto, St Michael's Hospital, Toronto, Ontario, Canada and Ross E. G. Upshur, University of Toronto, Ontario, Canada

Global health is beset by ethical dilemmas surrounding issues such as health inequalities, power differentials, cultural competence, informed consent, and ethics of research.

Presenting a solid theoretical foundation for global health work, this text supports students in understanding key areas of concern, ensuring that they are able to practise ethically worldwide. Written in an accessible manner, the book draws on political economy, human rights, and indigenous research methods, as well as cases in clinical work. Designed to encourage further inquiry, it includes discussion questions, lists of recommended resources, and suggested reading.

TEXTBOOK

Structural Approaches in Public Health

Edited by Marni Sommer, Columbia University, New York, USA and Richard Parker, Columbia University, New York, USA

It is now well-established that health has many social determinants and a myriad of structural factors are known to impact on population well-being. This textbook brings together some well known names in public health, including Michael Marmot, Paul Farmer, and Wiwat Rojanapithayakorn to discuss this emerging area of practice. The book examines the form that structural approaches can take and provides case studies of innovative and influential interventions. Drawing on examples from all over the world, it includes sections on the theory and practice of structural inventions and concludes with a section on implementation and evaluation.
